Context

Incomedia, a leading developer of software solutions, wanted to improve the performance of its affiliate program.

The main goal was to boost the number of orders and increase revenue coming from the affiliate channel.

The 'Spring Bonanza' contest was the perfect opportunity for the software company to engage with their affiliates and partners.

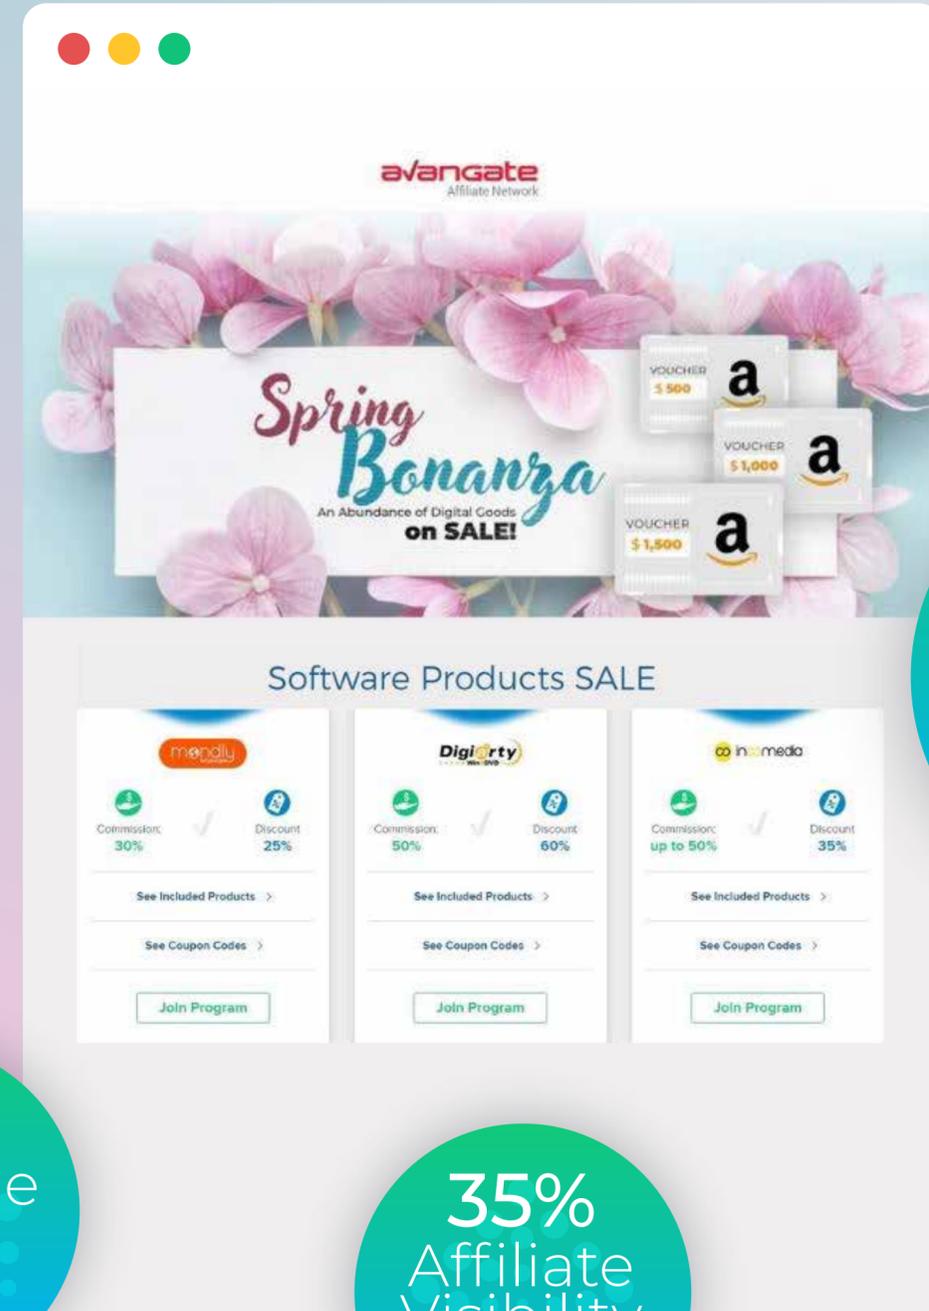

Solution & Results

During the contest, Incomedia offered their affiliates an impressive 50% increase in commissions and a tempting 35% discount on their flagship products.

The impact of this move was remarkable. Affiliates responded enthusiastically, leading to a significant increase in affiliate orders. What's even more impressive is the substantial 62% boost in revenue.

Incomedia decided to take the partnership one step further and opt for the Managed Affiliate Services to consolidate the affiliate program further and increase reach and sales globally.

This collaborative effort resulted a 35% increase in affiliate visibility year over year, and a 4% expansion of the total affiliate database.

About:
Incomedia

Incomedia was founded in 1998, out of a passion for technology shared by two brothers, Federico and Stefano Ranfagni, and their belief that technology should always exist to serve people. The next phase started in 2000, when a friend asked, "I'm not a programmer, but I want to launch a website. Can you help me?" It may have seemed crazy, but during a trip one hot summer day, the core idea for what would become WebSite X5 was born. This software, as intuitive as it is comprehensive, would allow anyone, even an inexperienced friend, to create their own website in just a few steps.
